the Recorders

Celebrating the life and times of our photographers and film makers, the recorders of the 20th century and beyond

*6 illustrated presentations and a workshop at the Queensland
Museum presented by Kev Franzi and his Time Machines*

Kev Franzi

Kev Franzi has been a professional documentary film maker and photojournalist for over 50 years.

Kev's passion for photography began at the age of 13 when his father presented him with a much used Vest Pocket Kodak camera. This camera and the first roll of film Kev shot with it became his key to a lifetime of adventure in film

Kev now runs the Movie Museum at Kenilworth, where he has been entertaining visitors with his unique brand of informative showmanship for the past 10 years.

The Recorders

The theme of Kev's series of talks comes from Robert Ingpen:

We owe a great debt to the artists and writers of the past – the recorders – for all that we know about Australia prior to our own generations.

These talks are a salute to Australia's photographers and film makers, who recorded the life and times of their era for future generations.

Each fully illustrated presentation runs from 2 till 4 in the Museum theatre, followed by afternoon tea.

The Recorders Workshop

Finally we explore your role as a recorder: your role in preserving the past, the present and the future. Learn simple techniques to help you improve your photography (stills, film and video) and preserve, use and increase the value of what you have recorded.

The workshop will be held on 22 October from 10 till 4 at the Queensland Museum.

Numbers limited! Bookings essential.
